

8 Principles of Good Autism Practice

“There are eight principles of good autism practice. These summarise the ethos, values and practice that needs to inform inclusive education for all children and young people whilst specifying the distinctive knowledge, teaching approaches and methods that are needed in the education of autistic children and young people.”
(AET)

How many of the 8 principles of good practice for general autism education do you think have been embraced by the school?